Holiday travel tips to keep your car running

BY TRACI BONNEY

It's Friday, and you're getting ready to go to Mom's for the holiday weekend.

Do you have your toothbrush? Your PJ's? Enough candy, toys and games to amuse the kids for the next five hours?

Is your car ready to go?

There's more to readying a vehicle for a long trip than just filling the gas tank (which you can do for less than $1 a gallon, if you know where to look).

Brad Rutledge at Himel Auto Parts Service suggested motorists check all belts and hoses for holes, soft spots or rotted places; make sure the car has anti-freeze; and be certain there's enough oil in the car.

"If your belts and hoses are good, and you have antifreeze and oil, you should be okay," he said. Carl Guy at Guy Tire mentioned checking belts, hoses, battery and all fluid levels. He also said you should make sure your tires have enough pressure (30-35 pounds for most tires), that they have no cracks or cuts in them, and that no nails have punctured them.

Checking the spare is a good idea, too. "You'd be amazed at the number of flat tires that come in here where the car had to be towed because the spare had no air in it," Guy commented.

If tires need to be rotated, now is a good time to do that as well. On most vehicles, the tires should

Purchases placed on hold by county school board members

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

School board trustee Carol Bustetter asked that Hancock County School Board members hold two purchases Monday.

She expressed a desire to wait until the new superintendent, Myrna Bourgeois, took office in January before approving the purchase of a 15-passenger, $18,825 1992 Dodge van, intended for use by the district.

She also asked that the board reject the low bid of $25,000 for the relocation of a 40/50-foot metal building from Hancock North Central Elementary to the high school. The cost included the replacement of the roof.

The board voted to reject the bid and to readvertise for the purpose of seeking a lesser cost. Also placed on hold by the board was the acceptance of a $9,000 bid from Wayne Herd for the purchase of the assistant principal's house adjacent to Hancock North Central Elementary School.

Herd appeared before the board and explained that he has been unable to view the interior of the house as keys to the property have not been located.

"I am bidding without the opportunity to look inside the house," stated Herd.

"From what I have been able to see, there appears to be a great deal of deterioration. The outside walls are crumbling apart and the roof needs to be replaced."

The house and property was appraised between $22,000 and $25,000, reported superintendent Terrell Randolph, who added that since that time the property value has gone down with lack of occupancy and upkeep.

The board agreed to allow Herd to return with another offer after viewing the inside. Assistant superintendent Eddie Danzey told Herd he would have keys for him to gain entrance to the house next week.

State completes congressional redistricting

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Mississippi Senator Vic Frankiewicz reported Saturday that Hancock County has not been affected by the newly completed congressional redistricting.

"Most of the changes for congressional districts have

Doll and Toy Fund distributes goodies

Ruby and James Thomas receive toys from Bay St. Louis firefighters (alias, Santa's helpers) Rodney Aguzin and Arthur Favre Monday. The toys were part of the Hancock County Doll and Toy Fund annual Christmas distribution. The gifts are distributed to parents within the days prior to Christmas for wrapping and placement on Christmas morning. Thomas said, "Please say, thank you to the community from my family, along with a wish for a Merry Christmas." The Thomas have two children, ages three and four. Director of the Doll and Toy Fund, Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Andrew Lizana, reported, "Approximately 1,100 children, from the top to the bottom of Hancock County, have benefited from this year's distribution." (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran) occurred in the Delta region. There we created a 58 percent black voting population.

"Congressman Gene Taylor's Fifth District had to lose some of its population."

Taylor's district, according to Frankiewicz, has been reduced in population to 514,638, from 535,431.

"He lost all of his portion of Jones County and the northern most part of Wayne County."

Frankiewicz further commented, "I do not anticipate any problems with (the new districts), unless the courts step in for some reason, and I doubt that will happen.

"Now we (the legislature) must return to session after the New Year and start from scratch on the state representatives' and state senators' seats."

County contemplates using dry fire hydrants

BY TRACI BONNEY

When it comes to improved fire protection and lower ratings, "dry" may be better.

"Dry" as in "dry hydrants," that is.

Hancock County volunteer fire districts are considering the use of the dry hydrant to better their ability to protect buildings and people. This concept, which has been in use in Georgia for the past decade, uses PVC pipe and joints to tap into bayous, ponds, canals — any body of water capable of having water removed from it without drying up.

East Hancock fire commissioner Paul Seckso, who was among several local volunteer and paid fire officials to attend a conference on the topic last Friday in Biloxi, said the dry hydrant cuts down on firefighters' response and travel time by allowing them to use a source of water closer to the fire than the storage tanks currently in use.

"Fire protection has three components: manpower, equipment and water. Mississippi's biggest problem is water," he stated. "Rural fire protection especially finds this a problem. Dry hydrants as a water delivery system are the key to this most serious problem to the people of South Mississippi."

The dry hydrant allows the use of available water supplies, improving fire protection and resulting in the saving of more lives and property, lowered insurance rates, potential for economic and agricultural development, and energy savings.

Seckso said, "Accessibility of water is no problem in Hancock County. The number of ponds, streams, rivers and lakes as a source of water is apparent."

"The problem is how to deliver the water in the quantities needed (3,000-5,000 gallons is needed as an initial attack on

HYDRANTS—Page 3A

So it doesn't fit . . .

BY TRACI BONNEY

If that "perfect" Christmas gift is just too big, small, broken, red, green, plaid or anything else, don't lose heart.

Today marks the beginning of the post-Yuletide gift exchange season.

This season, usually lasting up to a month or more, is marked by dramatic lengthening of the lines at store service desks and dramatic shortening of tempers and patience.

To avoid losing your temper, patience and place in line, here's a short list of what some of the area stores and shops do and don't allow.

At Kmart, those returning items for a refund will be directed to the service desk, while those wanting to exchange something will be sent to the appropriate department.

At Wal-Mart, two tables will be set up to the right of the doors as you enter. To exchange an item, you will give it to the worker, who will scan it to make sure it is Wal-Mart merchandise and to find out the price. You will then be directed to the appropriate department to select the item you want.

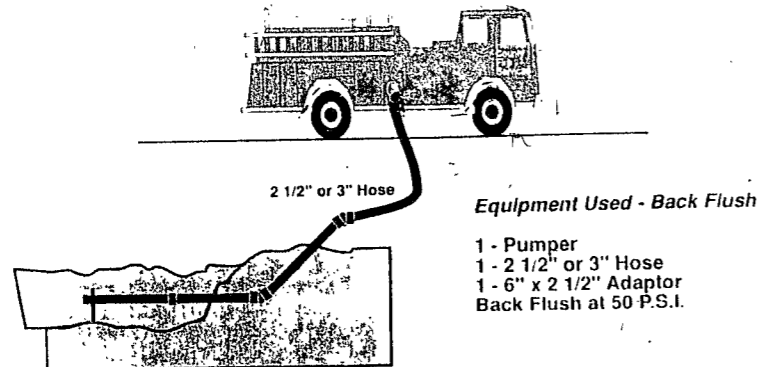

If you want a refund, the worker at the refund table will take the merchandise and scan it for price and store verification, then have you fill out a refund slip to take to the service desk. The store spokesman who explained the procedure said this will reduce time in line at the service desk since the personnel there will not have to handle any merchandise.

Most of the smaller, locally owned stores have a policy of giving exchanges or store credit, but not cash refunds. Some shops with this policy include The Sea Chest, which gives store credit on regularly marked items; Jeanne-Anne's Hallmark; Ellen Kane Gifts; Princess Dress Shoppe; Anthony's Men's Wear; The Kid Company; and Mijo's.

Antiques/Gifts & Goodies Galore gives exchanges, store credit and cash or charge refunds.

Last of the giants

"There were giants on the earth in those days" (Gen. 6: 4)
Only giants could survive and thrive in those days when Anthony Bourges decided to try for the priesthood at the Divine Word Missionary seminary in Greenville, Miss. in 1920. Anyone of lesser stature would not have even tried.
It took a giant to enter that seminary then, because it was the only one for blacks in the entire country. In fact, it was the first venture of its kind, initiated by German-born missionaries who dared what no one else did.
Ironically, not one of the liberal, avant garde dioceses around the country made blacks welcome in their seminaries, nor did they make alternate provisions.
After being rejected and labeled unwanted by every bishop and every religious order, one had to be a giant to swallow one's pride, suck in the pain, and apply for the priesthood.
It certainly took a giant to sport the double jeopardy of being black and Catholic at the time in the deepest Delta. Unreal as it may seem, that was literally a death-defying feat when joined to a program of education and self-help.
The very heart of Ku Klux Klan country, Greenville singled that tiny seminary, Sacred Heart College, with an unbelievable amount of racial heat and intimidation.
So intense did the social heat become that the seminary administrators reluctantly moved their institution to more tolerant Bay St. Louis on the Mississippi Gulf Coast in 1923.

It still took a giant to stick it out there until May 23, 1934 when Anthony Bourges and his fellow giants, Maurice Rousseau, Vincent Smith and Francis Wade were ordained as the first four black Divine Word Missionary priests.
Incredibly, not a single U.S. bishop wanted them in any capacity. Finally, with sundry misgivings, Bishop Jules Jeanmard of the diocese of Lafayette, La. arranged to have them stationed in the city of Lafayette at Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, built especially as an outlet for their ministry to African Americans.
Yes, it took giants to forge ahead at full throttle in the ministry of the Good News after being told repeatedly that they were stepchildren, second-rate ministers of God.
Together with his fellow giants, Anthony Bourges proved conclusively through his knowledge of the Bible and theology, and through his untiring labors in God's vineyard that his was anything but the role of a second-rate minister.
From the background of his native Scott, a townlet near Lafayette, La., he combined the Cajun culture with his African-American roots to fashion a formidable bilingual focus and capability in the southwest Louisiana ministry.
As much at home in French as in English, his eyes invari-

ly lit up when someone addressed him in Cajun or Creole.
Likewise, his cuisine betrayed those same roots whenever he took to the kitchen. A genuine gourmet cook, his forte was file gumbo, for which he made a meticulously correct roux. The chicken also had to be carefully skinned.
It is said in religious circles that a healthy appetite is a sign of a good vocation. This was certainly true in the case of Tony Bourges, as his appetite moved from food to an insatiable desire to share the Good News with everyone.

That fill the heart with joy.
Memories of Christmases
When you were just a boy.
And even though you're gone

And things have changed, it's Time can never change the

Each moment we think of

The music stops, and yet it

On in sweet refrains.
For every joy that passes,
Something beautiful

There's a time to weep, a time

What a difference you made

Texas man shot on I-10 Sunday

Mississippi Highway Patrol officer Howard Potts shot
Michael J. Scott, 37, of Houston, Texas, in the wrist Sunday when Scott pulled a gun on Potts.
According to an MHP report, Scott reached into his boot and pulled a .38-caliber handgun on Potts during a routine traffic stop on Interstate 10 while both men stood near the stopped car.

MHP officials said Potts defended himself by firing and will not be placed on leave.
Scott was sent to Hancock Medical Center, where he was listed in fair condition Sunday afternoon after undergoing wrist surgery. He is being charged with speeding and aggravated assault. Three tablets taken from his car were sent to the Gulfport crime lab for analysis.

be rotated every 6,000 to 8,000 miles.

Guy also suggested motorists carry a roll of wide duct tape. It can be used to patch leaking hoses or even create a makeshift belt if one breaks.

One other item of use is Fix-A-Flat. If your tire gets a small puncture in it and goes flat, Fix-A-Flat can patch it.

Now that the belts, hoses, tires and fluid levels are checked and problems are handled, you're ready to go, right?

Wrong.

State Highway Patrol Sgt. Dan Tackett has a few tips for travel safety.

"We advise everyone to buy a cellular phone," he joked.

Turning to the serious side of the matter, he gave the following list of items to take with you on a trip: flashlight, white flag, first aid kit, extra blankets if you're traveling in cold weather, and water.

If you break down, he said, you should tie the flag to the antenna, raise the hood of the car, put on your hazard lights, then get back in the car and keep the doors locked until someone you know or a highway patrolman arrives.

Tackett said that a few measures before you leave will also help: make sure lights and windshield wipers work, and follow the other suggestions listed above for ensuring the wellbeing of your vehicle.

He also said that about 120 state trooper across Mississippi who would have been off-duty over the holiday weekend will be patrolling the highways and byways, looking for traffic law violators and standing ready to help any motorists in trouble.

Stennis Space Center surpasses goal for annual charity drive

NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center surpassed its goal for the Combined Agencies Campaign (CAC), the center's annual charity drive.

All center employees participated, including those from NASA, the U.S. Navy and other resident agencies and contractors.

Stennis Space Center attained a final total of $203,429, exceeding their goal of $173,000 by 18 percent, which is a 10 percent increase over last year's contributions.

NASA employees were instrumental in the CAC, contributing $31,500, practically doubling their goal and surpassing last year's contributions by 64 percent. As a result,

NASA will receive the Silver Award.

The award is granted to organizations which donate between 65 percent and 85 percent of their giving potential. An organization's giving potential is based on one hour's pay from every employee per month.

Returns

One thing you definitely need to do, though, no matter what store your gift came from, is return it quickly. As one merchant commented, "You don't need to wait two months."

Another thing you can do to make your time in line shorter is to have the receipt on hand, if possible. However, although most store customer service personnel prefer you to have the receipt when you make a return or exchange, they also recognize that most gifts don't come with the sales slip attached.

So, whatever the problem with your "perfect" gift, may you have many happy returns today and in days to come.

Navy also played a major role in achieving the final total by contributing $81,575. Other employees went beyond the call of duty, as well, with an overwhelming display of benevolence.

The combined federal agencies gave $120,960, a 21 percent increase over their $100,000 goal, while industrial contractors pledged $82,446, surpassing their $73,000 goal by 13 percent.

structural fires. Dry hydrants strategically placed can provide the water needed at a very reasonable cost (approximately $800 to $1,000 per hydrant).

These hydrants will tap into water sources that, according to USDA Soil Conservation Department studies, can sustain prolonged water removal without drying out.

He said the East Hancock Fire Protection District is planning to start with five strategically placed hydrants. Other districts also are close to installing dry hydrants, he added.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

This is a reminder to those lucky folks whose names were pulled in the Hancock Chamber of Commerce's Red Ribbon Gift Certificate swap: Winners have until December 31 to claim their prizes, Chamber director Cindy Vernon reports.

Among the 46 participating businesses, there were thousands who registered, so those selected should feel lucky.

This year's Red Ribbon Christmas was a great success and merchants are already looking forward to the next celebration.

The participation by merchants and the general public was appreciated.

Vernon said there should be much more participation next year, in addition to several more community events in the Hancock County area.

I know I have to be concerned about weight gained during this holiday season and probably there are a few others in the area with the same problem.

Guess I will have to make a New Year's resolution to cut back on my eating.

Have you ever noticed how fast one can add weight, and then how long it takes to lose a few pounds?

I think I can almost smell food and gain a few pounds, and I know a few people who can eat 'everything under the sun' and not put on an ounce.

While on the subject of resolutions, it is time for you to think about those you are going to make come January 1.

I wonder how many of those promises will last until January 15.

The New Orleans Saints have finally won a conference title. It is good news for followers of the Saints, especially when many began to wonder a few weeks ago if they would even be in the playoffs.

It amazes me to observe the change in the Saints fans' attitude when Hebert returned as their starting quarterback.

It did not take long Sunday night for the 20,000 plus tickets to be sold for the playoff game against Atlanta.

I wish the Saints the best in the playoff series. Who knows, they could be the big champs of the National Football League.

As the season winds down, we still have many more weekends of football action.

A large number of bowl games in the college ranks will be played within the next few days.

Best of luck to all of the teams.

South Mississippi's homeport assigned first ship

Earlier this month the Navy announced the first of four ships to be assigned to Naval Station Pascagoula. The USS Gallery, a 445-foot-long guided missile frigate, is due to arrive at the homeport on Singing River Island by July, 1992.

Soon after the USS Gallery's arrival, three more frigates like it are expected to dock at the port toward the end of the year. By the first of 1993, the base should be up to full steam, employing hundreds of civil employees and over 1,000 military personnel.

Of course, the announcement is great news for Pascagoula and Jackson County. But it is also important to all of South Mississippi.

The economic impact the base is expected to have on our area is phenomenal. Navy officials estimate that there could be nearly 2,000 family members accompanying the sailors to South Mississippi.

These families are expected to shop in our retail stores, purchase cars from local dealers, buy groceries in our supermarkets and purchase homes in our communities. In turn, the flurry of activity is certain to strengthen South Mississippi's economy.

However, these ships will spend more time at sea than Navy ships of the past. Because of longer sea duty, new burdens will be placed on the spouses, families, and communities left behind.

When out to sea, a sailor wants to be assured that his family is living in a safe neighborhood, that his children are attending good schools, and that they have great recreational opportunities. He also wants to know his family is a welcomed member of the community. Homeport Pascagoula and South Mississippi will provide that and a whole lot more.

Finally, Naval Station Pascagoula's former commanding officer, Lt. Cmdr. Nancy Avila, along with dozens of state, county and city officials, should all be commended for a job well done.

Without Lt. Cmdr. Avila's direction, plus state and county contributions of over $20 million, this military installation would not have become a reality.

The role our new strategic homeport will play is of high military value to the smaller Navy of the future. It is commendable that so many South Mississippians had the foresight to plan for this base.

When the USS Gallery and three other frigates finally lay anchor in Pascagoula, all of South Mississippi can be proud that hard work and determination does pay off.

Home in Mississippi for the holidays

There are many special reasons for joy and to give thanks for this holiday season and to reflect on the blessings of the past year.

Last year at this time, we were facing the threat of war in the Persian Gulf. Earlier this year, the Soviets were on the brink of civil war and in the midst of a coup attempt. And, seven Americans were being held political hostages in the Middle East just a few weeks ago.

That war is behind us now; our Mississippi troops are home and democracy has broken out throughout the world. We can truly be thankful that so many of the Soviet people will have the joy of celebrating their first holiday season with religious and personal freedoms. And, the American hostages will be home and reunited with their loved ones for the first time in many, many years.

In Mississippi, we have much to be thankful for as well. We dodged the bullet of base closure and solidified Mississippi's commitment to a strong national defense.

The state set the standard for developing trade between Belize and the United States through the Belize-Mississippi Business Exchange Conference. We have put the plan for Mississippi's economic growth in motion by securing instrument landing equipment for many of our major airports and funds for our highways and bridges.

Our universities and colleges continue to provide worldwide leadership in various research programs. And, Mississippi experienced one of the best years on record for agriculture by reporting the second biggest cotton crop harvest and the largest crop ever economically.

A new Social Security Administration office for hearings and appeals has been located in northeast Mississippi.

In my own family, it also has been a good year. Tricia and I have moved into a home just a few blocks from Capitol Hill. Chet has begun a new career with Dominos/Team Washington, and Tyler is a senior in college.

During this special time of the year, it is important that we take time to look at all the hustle and bustle of the year past, be thankful for the good and learn how to correct the bad. This is a time for pride in family and Mississippi, for relaxation, fellowship and thanks.

I am happy to be home in Mississippi for the holidays. Best wishes for the holiday season, and have a very happy new year.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

Dirty Corners was transformed into New Hope

Something of a small miracle at this Christmastime took place a few days ago in a pocket of gut rural poverty in the Delta, of which there are many.

Dirty Corners was transformed into New Hope.

At least five dirt-poor families in the crumbling cotton field shack enclave of Tallahatchie County which has long carried the wretched name "Dirty Corners" was instantly given promise of a better house and a better life.

Henceforth, the folks thereabouts decreed, it will be known as New Hope.

On hand was the nation's chief honcho charged with caring for the housing needs of disadvantaged Americans, HUD Secretary Jack Kemp. And right at his elbow was 2nd District U.S. Rep. Mike Espy, who steered Kemp, plus a lot of bucks from a national foundation, to help eradicate the vestiges of Dirty Corners.

A $100,000 grant from the United Parcel Service Foundation will make possible construction of five new houses for New Hope families. Meanwhile, they will live in mobile homes from HUD.

Kemp came bearing more gifts from Uncle Sugar to provide relief in low-income housing, a major, chronic social ailment in Mississippi.

Kemp said $100 million will be allocated to the state in 1992 to help families in public housing buy homes and another $14 million to rehabilitate sub-standard houses.

No doubt Kemp's experience in meeting face-to-face the hard-core poverty in the Mississippi Delta was cultural shock of the highest order.

But it is reassuring that somebody from the Bush Administration would come down from the Potomac to become a witness to how a lot of Mississippians, a lot of Americans, have to live.

I can only recall 24 years ago when Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York came to Jackson to investigate reports of hunger and malnutrition among displaced black farm workers. Kennedy wasn't satisfied with just hearing testimony from witnesses about conditions in the Delta, he wanted to see for himself.

On his own, the younger brother of the slain President

Kennedy chartered a plane and flew to Greenville, then going unannounced by car from one little rural community to another to visit black families in their tiny hovels. I went with him. Even though I had some idea of what life for many blacks in the Delta was like, I was not really prepared for the sickening small of gut poverty inside those shacks, the dirt floors and the sight of distended bellies everywhere.

Along with Kennedy in the bare kitchen of one shotgun house, I asked Kennedy if he had ever seen anything like it before. This wealthy, patrician son of New England could easily have said "No," but he didn't. "Yes, I've seen it in Harlem and in Southeast Asia," he declared.

The tragedy is that the cycle of poverty which was evident in the stenchidden Delta hovels back then has not changed appreciably for a great many Delta blacks.

Perhaps it is providential that Mike Espy, a black man from the Delta, who though not a child of poverty, is now the congressman representing those who are locked in the jaws of poverty and do not know how to break its grip.

Espy has proven that he not only has deep concern for those who are the least of his brethren, but he has the ability and determination to do something to make their lives better.

From one national foundation to the next, Espy has combed all the best sources of philanthropic funds, convincing many of them to come forth with money and know-how to attack the roots of Delta poverty. At the same time, he has hammered relentlessly on the doors of federal agencies which control funds and manpower desperately needed in the Delta.

For Mississippi, Espy is truly a renaissance political figure who because he is black, and represents many of the poorest people in America, can open doors that no white politician, even though well-meaning, could possibly open.

Importantly, Mike Espy is no black racist, as are some blacks who have or aspire to have political power. He has skillfully transcended the stereotype which many Mississippi whites had long held about black elected officials.

State's future depends on employers and employees

Mississippi's future depends on its employees and its employers.

In 1990, we began to look into how job training and state government could create a new era of economic competitiveness in our state and increase opportunities for the current and future workforce.

For over a year, the Commission on Work Force Excellence, composed of private sector business leaders from around the state, has been studying how we can achieve those goals.

After its year-long study, the commission concluded:

* We need to focus on how state government can better address the basic problem that affects Mississippi's competitiveness.

* We need to create the kind of workforce that will produce the quality of goods and services that we must deliver in order to stay competitive in the global economy.

* We need to create a system that is responsive to the needs of business or that provides the kinds of training appropriate for helping Mississippians gain access to higher-skill/higher wage jobs.

We can and must do a better job for workers and employers. The employee expects and deserves to be adequately trained for long-term employment. And the employer expects workers who can do their job and adapt to changes in the workplace.

We can no longer afford to train workers using outdated techniques on antiquated equipment.

The commission has concluded that the key to Mississippi's economic competitiveness is the development of programs and policies that ensure that workers match employers' expectations and vice-versa.

The main point of the commission is that we must provide quality worker training and retraining for all Mississippians; otherwise, the quality of job opportunities will match the lower skills of our present workforce. And that could lead to

Former Keesler commander Harvey announces candidacy

Paul Harvey, retired Air Force Major General and former Commander of Keesler-Air Force Base in Biloxi, announced he is running for the Fifth District Congressional seat.

Harvey, a Republican, cited areas such as job creation, better education, strong support for law enforcement, maintaining a strong defense, changes in both foreign aid and capital gain tax as well as more help for our economy, as some of the areas where he feels his experience and leadership can play a positive role.

In August, Harvey, 54, retired after 32 years as officer in the United States Air Force. Since 1988, Harvey supervised the training of approximately 40,000 students annually at Keesler and other installations around the world.

Keesler is the largest technical training center in the Air Force and the second largest employer in South Mississippi. During the Persian Gulf War, he was an outspoken supporter of Desert Storm and the Keesler troops, serving in the Middle East.

"I support equipping our federal, state and local law enforcement officers with modern high technology state of the art hardware, said Harvey.

Harvey said through abolishing the capital gains tax and issuing foreign aid assistance in credits rather than dollars would also create more jobs, especially in South Mississippi.

"Credits allow assistance in the form of American made goods and services and agricultural products. That will keep the money in our country's economy and keep our production lines and industrial bases oiled and humming and above all create more jobs for Mississippi."

"Ninety cents of ever federal tax dollar should be directed towards education and no more than 10 cents of that same dollar towards administration," said Harvey. He also discussed the reduction of our defense structure and the possible effects if may have.

Hancock-led Memphis State beats Tulane 68-56 Saturday

BY TRACI BONNEY

Former Hancock High students Joye Lee-McNelis and Michael Ladner led the Memphis State University Lady Tigers to victory Saturday against the host Tulane Lady Greenwave.

Lee-McNelis and Ladner, head coach and first assistant for the Lady Tigers, urged the Memphis State team on to a 68-56 win over Tulane.

Lee-McNelis, a native of Leetown, became only the second head women's basketball coach at Memphis State since the team was reinstated in 1971. Replacing former head coach

Mary Lou Johns on April 11, Lee-McNelis inherited a team whose record over the last four years was 36-74.

She returned nine letter winners and was able to sign one junior college transfer. She also acquired a 5'8" guard who transferred from Louisville and a walk-on from Tennessee.

Before starting at Memphis State, Lee-McNelis was an assistant at USM, with three of her teams participating in the NCAA tournament.

She also played college basketball at USM, where she still ranks among the top players in assists (305) and scoring (1,510).

Ladner, a Necaise Crossing native, was the head boys and girls basketball coach at Bay High before accepting the Memphis State position. During his career at BHS, he was named District Eight varsity boys basketball Coach of the Year in 1990-1991. In addition, his 1988-1989 girls team placed second in the district.

Ladner is responsible for on-the-court coaching, scouting and recruiting.

The Memphis State Lady Tigers stand at 3-6 for the season, with wins over Jackson State, Grambling State and Tulane.

William Carey slates baseball camp

William Carey baseball coach Bobby Halford and New York Mets coach John Stephenson will conduct a holiday baseball camp Jan. 2-4 at H. R. Morgan field on the William Carey campus. Stephenson, a former William Carey coach, conducted the long-running Carey summer camp for 12 years before moving to Southeastern Louisiana University.

The baseball camp is for ages 7-15 and will include instruction in all phases of the game. Daily sessions are from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. with individual instruction. Cost is $65, which includes the noon meal, camp t-shirt, and insurance.

For more information, contact Coach Bobby Halford, 582-6110 or William Carey at 582-6192.

Chris Reisch of Bay St. Louis, a 1990 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School, will represent the University of Mississippi in track meets during the upcoming season. Reisch is a freshman.

Alan Uram, 13, of Bay-Waveland Yacht Club, will arrive in Rome today to sail in the 9th Optimist European Championship. Uram is one of 10 Optimist sailors from the United States who will compete in the event at Anzio Bay. Also competing is Southern Yacht Club's Willem Young. The U.S. team is coached by Tulane All-American sailor Alex Ascencios.

BHS Players of Month are Whavers, Necaise

Tripp Whavers was selected by Coach Mark Collins as offensive basketball player of the month for November. Whavers, a 6'1" junior, led the Tigers in scoring with an average of 13 points per game. In the Hancock tournament, he scored a game high of 28 points to lead the Tigers to a second place finish of Pearl River Central.

"Tripp is an all-around good player. He can shoot well and plays well defensively. For our Bay High Tiger team to do well, Tripp must contribute on both ends of the floor," said Collins. Brian Necaise, a 6'2" senior forward, was named outstanding defensive player. He led the Tigers in rebounding with an average of 10 rebounds per game, and had a game high of 12 rebounds in the game against Hancock.

"When Brian is in the game, he dominates the defensive boards. He is not a great scorer, but he makes up for scoring with hustle and good defensive instinct," said Collins.

How to Prevent Accidents When Digging Near Underground Gas Lines

Natural gas is delivered through a system of underground piping. Some of these pipes might be located beneath the ground where your excavation work is to be done. Personal injuries and property damage can occur if the pipes are struck or disturbed by digging, drilling or blasting.

Before excavating, drilling or blasting, you or your contractor should thoroughly check the surrounding area to see if any gas pipeline warning signs are in or near the proposed work site.

Prevent an accident-call in advance

If any warning signs are nearby, call the number shown on the sign, contact the company at the number shown below or call the one-call agency at the number shown below and indicate the county, township and section in which you will be working. Please call 48 hours in advance of any excavation operations; the phone lines are in operation seven days a week, 24 hours a day. If we have pipelines near the area, we'll be happy to dispatch trained field personnel to mark or stake the facilities at no cost to you.

Red- and bass-duck-fish report

It's time to go fishin' y'all. With the majority of folks goin' huntin', there are very few reports about where to catch fish.

However, some folks are extending their fun on their duck hunting trips by bringing a fishing pole along in their perogues (never could spell that word).

Not quite sure whether this means that they are attaching their fishin' line to the end of their shotgun or if they are bringing a "for sure" rod and reel along in their boat.

Anyway, we will call this the red-duck-fish and the bass-duck-fish report.

I have received several reports that there are a few bass and red fish to be caught in the shallow duck ponds.

You can see the reds working the shallows and they are responsive to a gold spoon placed right in front of them.

The reds being caught are of a nice size.

The bass are responding to the gold spoon worked around areas that have deeper water in the duck hunting ponds.

Some specks are still being caught in the Pearl River area by slow trolling with green beetles.

The most productive method has been to use several poles with different baits trolled at different depths until you find the right combination of bait and depth.

Just remember that the fishin' is slow and you have to move around a lot to find the fish.

Some nice size perch are being caught in the canals around Herron Bay. These perch are being caught on grass shrimp around structures like the train bridges in the marsh.

This week's wonderful wise words, "Christmas is family time."

"Take your family fishin', turtle."
